FORMER VICE PRESIDENT THOMAS R. MARSHALL DIES

PROMINENT INDIANA DEMOCRAT SUCCEUMS AT CAPITAL MONDAY

Death Due to Cold—Served
With Wilson—Was Ex-Governor

Washington, June 1.—Thomas
Riley Marshall of Indiana, former vice president of the United States, died here this morning.

Marshall had been ill at a hotel
here, with a severe cold, contracted during a trip to the capital from his home in Indianapolis.

His condition had improved
during the last few days, however,
and physicians regarded him as on the way to recovery.

The end came at 9:40 a.m., while
the former vice president was sitting
up in bed reading his bible.

Marshall was 71 years old last March. He was born in North Manchester, Indiana, and was educated at Washington College.

After practicing law at Columbia
City, Ind., for many years, Marshall
became a power in the Democratic party in his native state and served
as governor from 1909 to 1913.

The Democratic convention at Baltimore in 1912, which nominated
Woodrow Wilson for president, chose Marshall for second place on the ticket. He served as vice president during the administration of Wilson
and has since been engaged in lecturing in various parts of the country while taking no active part in national politics.

SECOND ACCIDENT VICTIM SUCCEUMS

Harry Hugley, 40, colored, of Dayton, died at the Miami Valley Hospital in Dayton Sunday morning from injuries he received in an automobile accident near the Xenia corporation
line on the Xenia and Dayton Pike
Sunday morning, May 24.

Hugley was injured and another man was instantly killed when a machine in which five colored men were riding skidded on the wet road and overturned.

Hugley was immediately taken to
the McClellan Hospital, Xenia, from where he was removed to the Miami
Valley Hospital.

When taken to Dayton, Hugley
was first believed to be suffering
from nothing more serious than a broken shoulder and broken hip, but rupture of the intestine was later
discovered.

The driver of the machine, J. W.
Davis, is facing a charge of manslaughter here.

FIVE KILLED WHEN TRAIN STRIKES AUTO

Hamilton, June 1.—Five persons were killed and one injured seriously when a Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Western train struck an automobile at McGonigle Crossing, eight miles north of Hamilton, Sunday morning.
The dead are:

Herschel C. Hutchens, 45, a telegraph operator of Willow Branch, Ind.
His children, Donald, 8; Margaret,
13; Gladys, 11;
Martha Wilson, 18, of Greenfield, Ind.

Earl Hutchens, 10, may die. All were on their way to Cincinnati to attend religious services. Hutchens had just finished conducting services at the Willow Branch Methodist Church.
Bodies of the victims, parts of the car and a Bible were found in a nearby field.

WRECK VICTIM DIES

Edward Sue, 23, of 478 St. Clair Street, Columbus, Ohio, died at the General Hospital, Columbus, Saturday as the result of injuries sustained in a train wreck of Morrow, Ohio,
May 4.

Sue, a brakeman, had his leg badly crushed in the accident necessitating the amputation of his right leg and
hip. Blood poison set in followed by pneumonia which caused his death.

Sue was injured when fifteen freight cars of the Pennsylvania Railroad were derailed east of Morrow.

MARSHALL DEAD

Thomas R. Marshall, former vice president of the United States, died at Washington, D. C., this morning. Death followed a severe cold he contracted on a trip from his home in Indianapolis to Washington.

To Establish "Summer White House" at Stearns Home Until After Labor Day

Washington, June 1.—President
Coolidge this week starts on a trio
of trips out of Washington, the third
of which will take him away from
the seat of the federal government
for the entire summer.

Two excursions are planned within the next six days—the first to Annapolis, Maryland, on Wednesday, where he will address the 1925
graduating class of the United States naval academy and the second
to St. Paul, Minn., on Saturday where he will take part in the Norse-American centennial celebration.

Two weeks after his return
from the west, the president is scheduled to leave for Swampscott,
Mass., where, at the summer home
of his friend, Frank W. Stearns, he will establish the first "summer
White House" since Woodrow Wilson
spent the summer at Shadow
Lawn, near Asbury Park, N. J., in 1916. The Bay State will claim the executive from June 25 until after Labor Day.

The Annapolis trip, to be made by motor, promises to be somewhat out
of the ordinary. It has just come to the attention of the White House that
a plan is afoot where by Mr.
Coolidge, unknowingly is to become
a featured player in a national educational drama of life at the naval academy being filmed by a private motion picture corporation.

The journey to St. Paul is also without its features, for when the presidential train leaves Washington Saturday afternoon, it will write
"finis" to Mr. Coolidge's efforts to travel just as any other ordinary citizen might.

Just as he went to Chicago last December, so the president sought
this time to again book passage on one of the regular, fast Pullman
trains, at no more expense than would be incurred by any other passenger.

Secretary Weeks' condition was reported
"not so good" by physicians today.

From Phillips House, Massachusetts
General Hospital where the secretary underwent an operation, came the following bulletin:

"Secretary Weeks general condition is not so good. He had a restless night. Pulse ninety; temperature normal."

Yesterday his condition was given as "not entirely satisfactory" due to an attack of hiccoughs.

TEXAS LEADS ALL STATES IN FOREIGN SALES IN 1924; OHIO IN $100,000,000 CLASS

Washington, June 1.—Texas made the greatest contribution of any state to America's $4,498,000,000 foreign sales in 1924, the department of commerce announced today.

Commodities billed direct from the Lone Star state to markets abroad were valued at $737,218,000, just a head of New York whose exports amounted to $736,593,000.

Five states were in the $200,000,000
exporting class, according to the department.

Tribute Paid Soldier Dead

Donahey Favors Tests On Other Date Than
Fourth of July

New York, June 1.—While not militantly enthusiastic over the idea, most of the governors of the forty-eight states are willing to co-operate with President Coolidge and the war department in the suggested plan to make July 4, annual "defense day" from a national standpoint.

This was declared today in a nationwide poll of gubernatorial sentiment taken by International News service.

Many of the governors feel that a day should be set apart each year on which the nation should take stock of
its defense situation when state
troops should be mobilized for inspection and survey and the thoughts of the people generally devoted to the preparedness that may never be necessary
but which must always be observed.

But not all of them by any means
believe that this day should be Armistice Day, or originally proposed by the general staff, nor do they wholeheartedly approve of President Coolidge's alternative suggestion of July 4.

Not a few of the state executives,
while declaring they would "go along"
with the federal government, if July 4th is selected, expressed the view
that "a better day could be selected,"
than either Armistice Day or the Fourth.

Governor Angus W. McLean (Democrat) of North Carolina, summed up the views of many of his colleagues
in other states when he said:

"I heartily approve of President Coolidge's plan to designate a national defense day. I believe in exerting every effort to abolish war and settle international disputes by peaceful means,
but until effective measures for this
our national defense should not be overlooked."

"It is my intention to authorize mobilization of the National Guard on the Fourth of July if requested, though I believe the designation of some other day would enable us to
effect more complete mobilization."

In a similar vein was the view of Governor A. V. Donahey, (Democrat)
of Ohio. He said:

"If July 4 is finally designated by the chief executive as Defense Day I shall issue such proclamation as is desired by the president. It is my belief, however, that a day better suited than the Fourth of July for
this test could be chosen."

"The great national significance
of this date, in my belief, will submerge
the interest in Defense Day."

mind is Governor George W. P. Hunt, Arizona.

"I see no objection to having a national defense day," said Governor Hunt. "I do not, however, think that such holidays as Armistice Day and July Fourth should be utilized for this purpose. I feel both these days
should be devoted to the cause of peace rather than consideration of further military activity. However,
if the president fixes upon the Fourth
I feel we should co-operate—at the same time expressing the hope that it will not become an annual occurrence."

An even stronger view was expressed by Governor Henry L. Fuqua, of Louisiana.

"It is impracticable to mobilize our state troops for July 4," he said. "I am inclined to think an annual defense day is too often. I feel that every two, or even four years is sufficient for a test, and not calculated to emphasize and foster a too militaristic spirit."

Undaunted by threats of arrest,
Xenia and Greene County merchants
kept their places of business open
issued by Attorney F. L. Johnson Friday.

Merchants refused to close and kept
"open house" the entire day in satisfaction
and perhaps astonishment that o-called "luxuries" were not denied them.

Attorney Johnson, who is demanding
a "blue law" county on Sundays
on behalf of unknown clients, declared Monday that two private detectives,
state men, combed the county Sunday for violations of the Sunday closing law but were forced to leave prematurely before affidavits could be prepared.

Attorney Johnson declared however
that the detectives' search had not gone unrewarded and that they had procured the wanted evidence
and names for prosecution either late Monday or Tuesday when the result
of their efforts will be announced.

Merchants quietly performed business
as usual with few exceptions, serene
in the belief that they were safe and that Attorney Johnson would not dare to substantiate his declarations with affidavits and subsequent arrests. Business was better than usual they said.

Attorney Johnson gives a promise
of wholesale arrests this week.

Weather Adds Crowning Feature To Impressive Memorial Day Exercises In Xenia—Parade Staged In Afternoon

Under perfect weather conditions
and with fitting ceremonies at all cemetaries, industry paused while patriotic organizations and civilians paid respect to the soldier dead in the annual Memorial Day observance
Saturday.

A friendly sun smiled down warmly
the entire day and enabled customary observance in Greene County to be the most impressive in years.

The usual Memorial Day parade,
the crowning feature of the day's exercises in Xenia was composed of various patriotic organizations of the city with a generous sprinkling of military units, veterans of the Civil War, borne to the cemetery in autos, their sons who fought in the Spanish-American War, the young veterans of the late World War, Boy Scout troops, and women who belong to various organizations and auxiliaries.

Forming on East Main Street, the parade moved west on Main to Dayton Avenue and thence to the cemetery, passing in review before hundreds of onlookers who lined the streets.
The parade disbanded at the cemetery.

The parade included members of the Police Department; the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home; the Cadet Band and Battalion; Company
L, 147th Infantry, Ohio National Guard; Company L Band; Sons of
Veterans; Lewis Post, No. 247, G. A.
R.; United Spanish American War
Veterans; American Legion; World
War Veterans; Boy Scouts; W. R.
C.; D. of V.; Legion Auxiliary; D. A.
R. and Xenia Fire Department, followed by civic societies.

Services at Woodland Cemetery began with the G. A. R. ritual and memorial to the unknown dead by the Lewis Relief Corps, several song selections by a male chorus and Lincoln's Gettysburg Address delivered by Captain Charles L. Darlington, past commander of the American Legion.
The Rev. F. W. Stanton delivered the Memorial Day address.

The exercises were concluded by the singing of "America" by the audience, taps sounded by a bugler and a salute
by a firing squad of Foody Post, American Legion. The services were held at the W. R. C. monument.

Captain Thomas Morrow, Cincinnati, veteran of the World War, delivered the Memorial Day address at the services at the O. S. and S. O. Home cemetery Saturday morning. The services were the most impressive in years and many soldiers, sailors and civilians attended.

The decoration of graves at Woodland Cemetery was performed by Song and Daughters of Veterans, American Legion and Auxiliary and Boy Scouts Friday evening. The Scouts collected flowers for the decoration Friday evening.

Impressive services were held at Beaver Creek, Stevenson, Mercer and New Burlington Cemeteries Saturday morning by the G. A. R. and at the Catholic Cemetery by the American Legion.

Albert Burrell, commander of Lewis Post, G. A. R. was in charge of the services at Beaver Creek, the services being held Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Lewis Relief Corps strewed flowers on the waters of the Little Miami River at Trebeins in memory of departed naval heroes. Services at the cemetery were in charge of the G. A. R. and W. R. C. Lincoln's Gettysburg Address was given by Mrs. Virginia Ellsberry.

The G. A. R. ritual was conducted at the Stevenson Cemetery Saturday morning, the party being in charge of H. H. Conklin. Similar services were held at Mercer Cemetery in charge of N. C. Litter and C. W. Wilson.

Services were held at Cherry Grove Cemetery preceded by a parade Saturday afternoon in which all colored organizations took part including a representation of cadets from the O. S. and S. O. Home.

Thomas Gilroy, of the American Legion had charge of the services at the Catholic Cemetery where the Legion ritual was conducted. The services began with Lincoln's Gettysburg address and an address by the Rev.
David Powers. Children on the parochial schools gave song selections. Graves at the cemetery were decorated Friday evening in charge of Mrs.
Frank Hustmyer.

WHAT PRICE GLORY? RUNS AMUCK

Fifteen Injured As Auto
Plunges Into Crowd
at Race

Cleveland, O., June 1.—Fifteen persons were in hospitals here today,
two of them seriously injured as a result of an accident that marred
the running of the What Price Glory?
race track.

The accident occurred when the driver of What Price Glory? in whose honor the sweepstakes limited to automobiles for which the owner was willing to accept $50, lost control of his car in the semi-finals and ploughed into a crowd of spectators. Thirteen
were hurt, the most seriously injured
being Joseph Andrews, 35, of Cleveland, and James H. Little, 68, of Altoona, Pa.

Two others were hurt as a result of a traffic jam as the thousands of
spectators were leaving the track.

BUSINESS AS USUAL IN GREENE COUNTY SUNDAY DESPITE LAW

Xenia and Greene County merchants
kept their places of business open
issued by Attorney F. L. Johnson Friday.

Merchants refused to close and kept
and perhaps astonishment that o-called
"luxuries" were not denied them.

a "blue law" county on Sundays
on behalf of unknown clients, declared
Monday that two private detectives,
state men, combed the county Sunday for violations of the Sunday closing law but were forced to leave prematurely
before affidavits could be prepared.

Attorney Johnson declared however
that the detectives' search had not gone unrewarded and that they had procured the wanted evidence and names for prosecution either late Monday or Tuesday when the result of their efforts will be announced.

as usual with few exceptions, serene
in the belief that they were safe and that Attorney Johnson would not dare to substantiate his declarations with affidavits and subsequent arrests. Business society bud, wife of "Eddie" Hillman, son of a wealthy Chicago department

HOPES FOR REPEAL OF DRY LAWS GIVEN BLOW BY WET SOLO

King Says Modification Is Only
Prohibition

Washington, June 1.—A death blow
to the hopes of wets that the national prohibition law may be repealed if
the Coolidge administration's rum
war fails, was sounded here today by Senator William King, Democrat, of Utah, who led congressional opposition to enactment of the eighteenth amendment. King declared there can be no real change in the dry statute
even though government finally concedes its inability to properly enforce the law.

To restore old fashioned beer and other intoxicating liquors he said, would require a constitutional amendment with its ratification by thirty six states. Such an overthrow
of prohibition he added, is hopeless
during the present generation.

The only possible modification,
King asserted, might come by action
of congress to legalize 2.75 percent
beer and wine. This percentage of alcoholic content, he explained, already has been termed "non-intoxicating" by government experts and therefore is not banned by the eighteenth amendment.

As a member of the Couzens senatorial committee, which adjourned its hearings for the summer, King made
a study of the enforcement situation.
He declared his observations revealed serious defects in the prohibition service, due chiefly to the failure of enforcement officials to seek
"higher-ups" in the bootlegging industry.

"No matter how much a failure the government's prohibition drive becomes,
congress will be without the power to repeal the statute or to liberalize
the law," said King.

"I see no possibility, certainly no
probability, of any modification of the eighteenth amendment. The only real modification must come through
a constitutional amendment and that virtually is an impossibility. Without such an amendment, congress is powerless to legalize the sale or manufacture of any intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes."

The wets, King said, will have to
be satisfied with an effort to legalize
2.75 per cent beer and wine. A drive for this modification is anticipated.

MAN'S INHUMANITY—!

New York, June 1.—Mrs. Florence
E. S. Knapp, secretary of state, has received numerous letters from women asking whether, in the state census which is to be taken commencing today, their truthful age must be given.

Mrs. Knapp said today that "truthful answers are expected to all questions."

PROPOSE TO DISCUSS DEBTS WITH FRENCH IN NEUTRAL CAPITAL

Coolidge Has Not Suggested Change In Policy
of Meeting

Washington, June 1.—A movement has been launched here in unofficial circles close to the administration to stage the forthcoming Franco-American debt negotiations in London, instead of either in Paris or Washington.

There were no indications today
that this suggestion had come directly from President Coolidge or any member of his cabinet and for the present they permitted no deviation from the understanding that it was the desire of the administration to have all debt funding negotiations
take place in the United States.

In the meantime, however, they are waiting with interest the reaction in Europe to the suggestion that debt
conference be held on neutral territory.
Officials pointed out that ample time remained to decide upon this detail after formal notification had been received from France that she
was ready to open negotiations.

If the French government at that time expressed an unwillingness to send a debt commission to Washington and the United States stood firm against sending an American commission to Paris the time would then be ripe to extend a formal invitation to both the American and French governments to have their debt negotiations
in the British capital.

Such an invitation would be necessary,
in the view of the administration as it would be contrary to diplomatic courtesies for either the United States or France to invite themselves to England for an international conference in which England had no official part. It was probable today that the United States would consent to open debt negotiations with France in London if the government failed in getting a French commission to come to Washington.

HEARING SET AFTER PLEA OF NOT GUILTY

Ollie Williams, colored, Cedarville, entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of operating an automobile while intoxicated
in Probate Court Monday morning and was remanded to the County Jail in default of $200 bond.
His hearing was set for Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock before Judge S. C. Wright.

Williams was arrested Saturday by Constable Cal Ewry of Cedarville, after he is alleged to have driven his machine into a ditch partially wrecking it.

AUTHOR OF TAMMANY SONG ANSWERS DEATH

New York, June 1.—Charles B. Lawlor, author of the "Sidewalks of New York" is dead. Death was due to heart disease. He will be buried tomorrow.

Mr. Lawlor was blind and had been in impoverished circumstances for years.

DIES OF DOG BITE

Chillicothe, June 1.—Madeline Barnett, 9, whose death occurred recently, was the first victim of hydrophobia in the annuals of Ross County's health records.
The child was bitten on the face by a mad dog.
Due to the extreme youth of the child, increasing susceptibility and the wound being located near the brain, it was very difficult to treat the case.

Detroit, Mich., June 1.—Although Henry Ford is keenly interested in the development of commercial aviation, he never once has set foot in an airplane and in all probability never will. This is what he brought out in a discussion today of the recently-created Ford Air Services between Dearborn and Chicago.

"I have never been off the ground
in a plane," he said. "The chances are I never will go up, either. I have never had the slightest desire to fly;
understand there's nothing to it. It simply does not appeal to me."

Incidentally this man who once piloted racing cars against the greatest American racers, rarely drives an automobile nowadays. Traffic conditions (largely occasioned by the abundance of his own make of cars) make utter concentration on one's driving essential.

And he likes to relax and think of other things while riding, he explained.

ADDRESS OF REV. F. W. STANTON ON MEMORIAL DAY

We are gathered here once more to pay tribute to the dead soldiers of three wars. As I observed the depleted ranks of the soldiers of the G. A. R. in the parade today I thought of how Joseph Addison in one of his classics, represents humanity as a great throng passing with solemn tread over a great bridge with four and twenty arches. The bridge was set with numerous secret trap doors, which unexpectedly opened ever and anon, and the passenger would drop through to his death. When the last arch was reached but few remained to pass under it. The G. A. R. is passing over such a bridge as that. Under many arches you have marched, but ever and anon the door of death opens and a comrade drops out of the procession. Likewise the ranks of the Spanish-American war veterans are thinning out. Also the American Legion boys are dropping out, a few hundred every year, and fifty years from now but few will remain to tell the thrilling story of Chateau Thierry and the Argonne Forest. What then? Shall Memorial Day pass into the oblivion of history? Shall silver tongues cease to tell the story of your heroisms? Will generations to come plant no flags and scatter no flowers on your graves?

Ah, No! A thousand times no! I put my ears to the earth, and I hear the tread of another army, marching with manly vigor and patriotic reverence. It is the army of the Sons of Veterans. They are climbing the hills of history, and looking down upon the battle fields drenched with the loyal blood of their fathers. The daughters of veterans will join with them to keep green your graves, and hold in everlasting remembrance the deeds of your valor. Do not fear; you will not be forgotten. All you shall have a monument. It may not be of brass, or bronze, or marble, but it will be of something more lasting. It will be the imperishable monument of this Memorial Day. In 1848 in the city of Paris a great tree was planted with solemn ceremony. The occasion was one of unusual interest, and marked the new epoch in the nation's struggle for freedom. Victor Hugo was the orator of the day, and he called the tree "The Tree of Liberty." Memorial Day might well be called a "Tree of Liberty." It was planted in 1868 when Gen. John A. Logan, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., issued a request that the Thirtieth of May be set aside for that purpose. Congress made it a legal holiday and now for fifty-five years we have been gathering under the branches of this illustrious tree every thirtieth of May, to remember our fallen heroes with the bestowal of flowers, sweet emblems of life's purest joys and tokens of the heart's best love.

Some call this Decoration Day; others call it Memorial Day. In memory of what? Ah! how shall we answer that question? You may say in memory of a nation's peril and a nation's triumph, but does that express it? You may say in memory of the silent heroes who fell at Shiloh, Vicksburg, Chickamauga, Antietam, Gettysburg, Mission Ridge, and Appomattox, where peace once more looks down upon a blood drenched land. You may say in memory of Manila Bay, Santiago, San Juan, and El Caney of the Spanish-American war. You may say in memory of Chateau Thierry, the Argonne Forest and the beautiful cemetery at Romagne, France, who fell victims of German militarism during the World War. But do these express it all? No, No.

These Civil War veterans will remember today that thousands of their comrades sleep beneath the sod, made sacred by their life's blood. These Spanish-American War veterans will remember that thousands of their comrades sleep beneath the silent skies, which bent in pitying mercy when they fought for Cuba's freedom. The American Legion Veterans will remember the thousand of their comrades sleeping yonder in Flanders field, where the poppies grow, in Armington Cemetery, and other silent grave yards all over this country. What a day of memory!

First, that it may ever be to us a day of Memory. There are those who think we ought not recall the memory of the dead, that it is unkind to speak to the bereaved of their departed ones. They would console hearts by making them forget. They would prescribe oblivion for the cure of wounded spirits. This is a mistake. The very memory of our dead blesses us. We are made more tender and gentle toward the living, and our hearts are more considerate toward those who belong to the great fraternity of the bereaved. I lived in North Carolina five years. Confederate Decoration is a month earlier than ours but on the thirtieth of May it is a custom with many communities to gather at the cemetery, where for years they have been burying their dead, and decorate the graves with flowers, etc.

The observance of this Memorial Day will soften the hearts of a whole nation because we will be compelled to remember. We will remember the sad days when the boys said goodbye to the home folks, not knowing that they should ever come back. We will remember the long days and weeks when we had no word from the front, and when at last a letter came, it was in a strange hand writing, saying that John had been slain in action, bravely fighting for his flag and his country. We will remember the retreats and drives, the defeats and victories, the days of broken hearts and the days of shouting the day when the news came that the war was over, and the day when some of the boys came tramping home, leaving their comrades to sleep in far away fields. Yes, fellow citizens, this is a day of memory, and as we go forth to scatter the garlands on the graves of our fallen heroes, all over the north and the south, there will come up a silent voice saying "Do this in remembrance of me." While memory lasts these dead shall not be forgotten.

"Sleep on, embalmed and sainted dead! Dear as the blood ye gave; No impious footstep here shall tread The herbage of your grave! Nor shall your glory be forgot While fame her record keeps, Or honor points the hallowed spot Where valor proudly sleeps."

Second: We need this day to keep alive the spirit of true patriotism. The love of country and the love for

God are the two pillars which support the fabric of a nation. If either one dies out the nation is in peril; if both die out the nation topples to its decay. True patriots have fought and died in all lands and climes; the Swiss in his mountain luxuries, the Frenchman at his barricade, the Roman on the banks of the Tiber, the negro on his island, but often they were spurred to duty by rights threatened or wrongs endured. Patriotism fired the Spartan at Thermopylae, the Carthaginian in the plains of Zama, the Spaniard at Vittoria, the German on the banks of the Rhine. Many men in many nations have fought for conquest, for glory, or for a name, but where in all the range of history can you find men who laid down their lives with a nobler spirit of patriotism than did the men who fell in the Civil War or the Spanish-American War, or the Americans in the World War? Think of it for a moment. The men who fought in the Union army were fighting Americans, not foreigners. They were brothers fighting brothers, fathers taking up arms against sons and sons against fathers. Can there be any greater test of patriotism? Then the boys of the Spanish-American war fought not for more territory, not for honor, nor for conquest; not against a foe threatening our shores, or invading our harbors. They fought purely for the liberty of oppressed Cuba. It was a humanitarian war. They died solely for others. Then what could prompt 2,000,000 American soldiers to leave mothers, wives, sisters, sweethearts and go 3,000 miles to the bloody fields of France to fight the German hordes? Was it for mere personal honor? By no means. It was pure patriotism which fired their breasts. They fought for those high principles of Democracy against Autocracy; for world peace against militarism; for God, home and native land against infidelity, greed and despotism. It has well been said that the American soldier has always unsheathed his sword in the interest of humanity. There are brave, patriotic men in France, but I am wondering if there are 2,000,000 men in France willing to leave their homes, as our boys left theirs, and go 3,000 miles to fight a foe which was not directly oppressing them. Ladies and gentlemen, I would impress upon your minds that patriotism is the heritage of the American soldier, and it is the heritage of us all. As our soldiers have always fought under the inspiration of true patriotism, so we should be willing to fight every evil which threatens our land with the same true spirit of love for country.

Once in the days of the Republic of Rome an immense chasm appeared in the midst of the city. So between the north and south, between America and Spain, and between America and Germany, awful chasms opened their mouths, and not until millions of our noblest boys were sacrificed in them, were these horrid mouths closed. This is what I call patriotism, and the remembrance of such deeds on this Memorial Day will go a long way to inspire patriotism in the hearts of our youth.

Third: We need this day to teach us the terrible cost of peace.

When Paul was arrested in Jerusalem, we are told that Lysias, the chief captain, asked him if he was a Roman. Upon being assured that he was a Roman citizen, the chief captain said "With a great sum obtained I this freedom." From this we learn that there was a time when Roman citizenship was bought and sold, and the price was very high. Freedom is never cheap. Peace is never obtained at a small cost. I once heard an orator on Decoration Day compare the cost of the civil war to that of other wars. Revolutionary, Franco-Prussian, Crimean and it was a revelation. It cost more lives, more money, more broken hearts than any of these. In the 2,240 battles of those bloody four years more lives were lost than were in all America at the close of the Revolutionary War. When we look at the stars and stripes yonder, and remember that we live under its protection in a land of peace, let us not forget that the peace we enjoy was purchased at a fearful cost. But as great as was the cost of the Civil War, far greater was the cost of the World War. The Civil War cost one million men; the World War cost ten million men. The Civil War cost one billion dollars; the World War cost Germany alone forty-six billion. If we ever have another world war it will bankrupt the nations. I do not say the only way to have peace is through war, but I do say that the history of peace through freedom shows that it has ever been purchased at some kind of a fearful sacrifice. President Harding speaking at the burial of the 5,212 bodies brought back from the graves of France, said, "There is never a death but somewhere a new life; never a sacrifice but somewhere an atonement; never a service but somehow an achievement." On this Memorial Day it should be burned into every heart that the peace we enjoy has come through the supreme sacrifice of noble sons and daughters. Not only should it beget in every heart a spirit of everlasting gratitude, but it should cause us this day to highly resolve "that these dead shall not have died in vain." With Kipling let us sing, "God of our fathers, known of old, Lord of our far-flung battle line, Beneath whose awful hands we hold Dominion over palm and pine: Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet, Lest we forget, lest we forget!"

Fourth: We need this day to foster the sentiment of decorating the graves of our dead with flowers. Have you ever noticed that all cemeteries are beautified for the thirtieth of May? A man told me the other day he expected to leave his business day or two before the 30th and go over to the country grave yard in an adjoining county to decorate his parents' graves. Not only soldiers' graves will be decorated, but family plots will be fixed up, and old slabs will be straightened, and blossoms will be tenderly placed upon the sacred spots.

In olden times we are told the Hebrews, returning from their burial places, used to pluck the grass from the field, then throw it over their heads, suggestive of the resurrection. But on this day we pick not the grass but the flowers, and throw them not over our heads, but right down on the dear spots where lie the dearest ones of earth. Go out to the cemeteries of our country tomorrow, and behold the tombs wreathed in flowers, the graves spread with garlands, the ledges of mausoleums set with bouquets and the private vaults made fragrant with the bursting buds. Flowers, flowers! Can we find any thing more appropriate, with which to decorate our graves? We would not decorate them with jewels of gold or silver; we would not place medals of brass or iron upon them; neither would we decorate them with the dust of diamonds; but we would bring our tributes in flowers. The garlands can best speak the language of our hearts today. We "say it in flowers" God's most beautiful gifts to men. The custom of strewing flowers on the graves of our dead soldiers originated in the South, among poor ex-slaves. They were too poor to bring anything else, so, having plenty of flowers in that land of sunshine, they plucked them, and with grateful hearts scattered them upon the graves of those who had fought for their liberty. It is a beautiful custom. Bring on your flowers, then, and spare them not! Bring the snowballs, the peonies, the tulips, the lilies of the valley, the lilacs, the hyacinths, plain flowers and costly flowers, wild flowers and cultivated flowers, bring them on, and let our cities of the dead be turned into flower gardens. It will honor the dead; it will comfort the living.

Not costly domes, nor marble towers, Shall mark where friendship comes to weep, Let clustering vines and fragrant flowers Tell where the Nation's heroes sleep.

They merit all our hearts can give, Our praises and our love they claim; Long shall their precious names survive, Held sacred by immortal fame.

Blest be the land for which they fought— The land where freedom's banners wave; The land by blood and treasure bought Where dwell the free, where sleep the brave. In conclusion, ladies and gentlemen, it remains for us to keep alive the immortal principles of right, justice, liberty, and peace, for which our soldiers fell. Let our tongues cleave to the roof of our mouths, and our right hands forget their cunning, if we forget God and home and native land and

PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO LIQUOR CHARGE

Worrell was arrested Saturday by Deputy Sheriffs John Raughn and George Spencer and County Detective F. E. Gary, who raided his home and confiscated six gallons of liquor, numerous bottles, jugs and containers.

TWO INJURED WHEN MOTORS COLLIDE

The Ford car was overturned and Mr. Jones and Mr. McCoy were thrown out. Mr. Jones foot being pinned beneath the car. He was severely bruised and Mr. McCoy received cuts on his hand, arm and elbow. The machine in which they were riding was demolished.

MODISH MITZI—Life In The Country Has Its Inconveniences

Three handed bridge isn't much of a game, but what else are our three heroines to do on a sunny afternoon when they have decided that only their prettiest clothes can honor to the season? Anyway it gives you an opportunity to admire the three smart hats that show the way the summer fashions for hats are going. They are, as you can see, quite definitely large. They are made of the correct assortment of light straw, georgette, lace and large flowers. Guaranteed to preserve any face from sunburn.

The spider is not, as you might think, an uninvited guest. We invited him ourselves—knowing the aversion of these young women to his kind—so that this sketch might show you the three gay dresses that match the hats so nicely. Polly is flowered chiffon, Mitzi's white crepe de chine with rows of tucks to give a plaid effect. Adelaide's is printed crepe de chine with a skirt made of four full flounces of the material. The in-uder did his stuff very well. Polly was about to bid six hearts, hopefully, on the dummy.

DELAYED JUSTICE CAUSES LAWLESSNESS

"THE most important question confronting the American people today is law enforcement. We do not need more laws. What we need is the enforcement of those we already have," declares Edwin A. Olson, United States attorney for the northern district of Illinois.

Ninety-nine of all our prevailing ills would quickly disappear if there would be a constituted equal and impartial enforcement of all our laws, believes the Federal official. "Justice delayed is justice denied," declares Mr. Olson, who, when he took office three years ago, had the difficult opportunity of bringing to trial a well known national swindler who was walking the streets of Chicago after having been indicted in 1914 for a crime he had committed in 1911. When he took office in 1923 the prohibition amendment had been in force more than three years, yet the condition that prevailed in Chicago, because of the lack of official enforcement by state authorities, was appalling. With but apparent ease Attorney Olson cleaned up the situation in eighteen months and from his work he gleaned the working axiom that he would have the country adopt to overcome the deluge of its present ills.

"Show me a public official who refuses to enforce prohibition laws and I will show you a public official who will refuse to enforce any law when approached by his political master," guarantees Mr. Olson. At the time of his induction into office there were 7,000 saloons, soft-drink parlor violators, wet cabarets and breweries in Chicago. No city, county or state officials were doing anything to overcome the situation. With hordes of money the illicit traffickers were able to corrupt enforcement officials and were perfectly free to provide the poisonous liquor. But inside of eighteen months over 2,000 illegal purveyors were convicted and punished. They included not only the "West Madison street bums" but also the exclusive "Gold Coast" violators. One loop hotel was even closed.

But all of this work should have been done by the state courts instead of the Federal courts and one Federal judge did the work of what 48 state judges should have done. For this, and similar reasons, the Federal courts of the country are now over-crowded with thousands of cases of minor importance that the state judiciary should have taken care of. Delinquent justice is a wrong suffered by law abiding citizens and the blame for lack of strict enforcement is directly laid at the feet of public officials. Public officials who do not enforce the 18th amendment have one stock alibi, and that is, that public sentiment makes convictions difficult, if not impossible. But the true fact is that it is political sentiment that keeps them from enforcing the law.

When Mr. Olson became Federal attorney there were some 2,000 cases on the criminal dockets in the courts. Criminals were walking the streets of the city and menacing citizens. In eighteen months 5,000 cases had been cleared from the courts, disposed of competently, this number being greater than the average trial convictions that were obtained during the previous seven years. The voice of public opinion, that of each individual voter, is the only help that the present condition throughout the country can expect. Delay is the strongest card in the deck of the criminal and in ninety-nine out of every 100 cases delay results in the freedom of the criminal.

LEST THEY FORGET

ADVOCACY of personal economy by President Coolidge is being assailed by Representative Davey, Democrat of Ohio, as hurtful to business. Which is more harmful to substantial business, personal economy, or the banks full of paper? And what kind of Democrat is this? Why, a few years ago the Democrats were applauding McAdoo because of his ascertain that he wore patched pants. And McAdoo didn't have to wear them, if we judge by his oil salary.

JUST FOLKS

Edgar A. Guest

Good friends are few,
Not many if you lived a hundred years
You would discover, who,
Through life's care and hurt and grief and tears
Would stay by you.

Acquaintances grow thick They line the level pathways and the fair,
But they to change are quick.
When storms come up and dangers bring despair,
But one or two will stick.

Gold can be multiplied, Treasures and lands increased, but friends
Love only can provide
And but a few, love ever gives or ends.
Loyal, however tried.

HUNT FOR HABITUAL STRANGLER IN DEATH

New York, June 1—An "habitual strangler" was being sought today in the manhunt for the brutal murderer of Florence Kane, whose mangled body was found in a vacant lot near her Brooklyn home early last Friday morning.

Detectives were investigating five other similar attacks on women in the neighborhood of the crime. Each case bears a striking resemblance to the Kane slaying, police said.

Authorities are seeking a giant negro, reported to be six feet tall with extraordinary strength.

Ham-Stuffed Peppers: The following recipe will stuff eight green sweet peppers: Mix together one cup of boiled rice, one cup of broth or leftover meat gravy thinned, one cup of cooked ham, 2 tablespoons of softened butter, one cup of diced uncooked celery, a little chopped parsley if you have it, one half teaspoon of salt, one medium sized onion finely chopped, and either one large fresh tomato cut small, or one half pint cup of the more solid parts of canned tomato. Cut the eight peppers in half lengthwise, remove seeds, and parboil in water to cover—that is simmer about ten minutes; drain off this water and stuff the 16 halves. Top each with buttered bread crumbs and bake in a hot oven for 15 minutes. This dish will be used for the meat dish on Thursday evening; the housekeeper will find it an economy of labor to broil more sliced ham than she needs for breakfast on Wednesday morning so as to have a cupful of ham left overs next day.

Eggplant a la Marie: Boil an egg plant for 15 minutes in salted water, then cut a slice from its top and scoop out its pulp. Chop this pulp and drain off a little of its moisture. Now make a sauce as follows: Melt two tablespoons of butter in a saucepan, rub two tablespoons of flour into it, add a pinch of salt, and stir in three quarters of a cup of sweet milk; when it comes to the boiling point, add one fourth cup of cooked and drained spaghetti and one cup of cooked green peas, then add almost all of the pulp which you previously removed from the inside of the eggplant. Restuff the vegetable shell with this, pile buttered crumbs on top and lay slices of uncooked bacon over the crumbs. Bake for 20 minutes in a hot oven, on a greased pan. Serve hot.

Cheese "Pudding" Supper: Dish: This is to be served Sunday night. Beat one egg yolk with one cup of granulated sugar; add one pound of mild American cheese which has been very finely chopped by hand or put through a food chopper. Also add two tablespoons of flour sifted with one tablespoon of baking powder, one large or two small cooked mashed white potatoes, one half cup of seedless raisins, and the grated rind of one small lemon. Last, fold in the stiffly whipped white of one egg. Bake in a moderate oven for one hour and serve hot.

BOWERSVILLE IDLE BECAUSE OF DEATH

A scheduled game between the Bowersville Bayliffs baseball team and the Trebein nine Sunday afternoon at Bowersville was postponed because of the death of James Hargrave of Bowersville.

The Bayliffs were forced to idleness for the fourth straight Sunday but will play a game with the Washington Independents, of Washington C. H., next Sunday at Bowersville. Wells, star Bayliff pitcher, will work the Sunday game with Murrell behind the plate.

Wells hurled for the Washington nine in the South-Central Ohio League last Sunday and turned in a 10 to 8 win against Wilmington. The star Bowersville twirler pitched a fine game but loose fielding on the part of both teams ran up the score. Wells is making a name for himself in local baseball circles and a number of clubs are said to be bidding for his services.

The players are keeping in trim for the possibility that a game may be staged next Sunday and are practicing several nights each week.

JOYOUSNESS, FORTITUDE AND FAITHFULNESS

These are three sterling words. My reason for making note of them here is that a young lady by the name of Miss Dorothy Lee, who is the daughter of the Vice-president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, recently won the title of "Sunny Jim" at her school.

The title is bestowed each year at Bryn Mawr College upon the student who during the year has shown most conspicuously these qualities.

I am certain that here is a young lady who is not going to have a difficult time in handling life.

For life itself isn't hard. It's the way we look at it and take it up.

Joyousness, fortitude and faithfulness! The words make you feel like going right out and taking some great hill "on high" just to repeat them.

I wish titles like the one at Bryn Mawr were bestowed in every high school and college in the world.

Just consider what the offices and homes of this land, and every land, would become with these words as a motto over the entrances.

Nothing is truer than the assertion that we only take out of life what we put into it. Although it has often been proved that we really take out much more than we apparently put in where we give without thought of taking anything out.

Joyousness, fortitude and faithfulness on our part always draws others with like qualities toward us.

Plant lovely flowers in one spot in your yard and you are inspired at once to have them all over your place.

Beauty of mind and heart are contagious.

Too many people think that too many things matter. As a statement of fact, only a few things matter at all. And three of these things I would name as—joyousness, fortitude and faithfulness.

W. CRAWFORD CRAIG SHATTERS AMATEUR GOLF RECORD HERE

Playing in the qualifying round of the men's tournament at the Xenia Country Club Saturday W. Crawford Craig shattered the nine-hole course amateur record by making the first round in thirty three. Craig's score is the lowest ever made by an amateur on the local links and equals the course record set by Dit Sage, Dayton professional, last year.

Craig made his record breaking score handicapped by a penalty of one stroke. He finished the eighteen holes in 74 taking a forty-one on his second round, which was low score for the three qualifying flights. Arthur Dyer registered the second best total of the day with a 77.

Of the more than thirty entries in the tournament, the low twenty-four players qualified with scores ranging from 74 to 106. The tournament will continue through this week with the survivors divided into three flights of eight men each.

The play is elimination and a winner of each flight is expected to be determined this week. First round matches are expected to be played before Wednesday.

D. W. Cherry, paired with Mrs. W. Crawford Craig, won the mixed doubles, two-ball foursome tournament in the afternoon in a play off with Mrs. C. E. Fisher and Chalmers Murphy and R. S. Kingsbury and Mrs. Rachel Kelly. The three twosomes were tied at the end of the play. The Fisher-Murphy entry won second place in the play-off.

There were twenty-eight entries in the tournament paired off into seven foursomes.

Saturday golf activities inaugurated the holiday tournaments for 1925 at the local club.

RESERVES DROP TWO GAMES IN TWO DAYS TO SHROYER CUBS AND DAYTON BLUE RIBBONS

By L. J. WONES

The Reserves did not do so well in their two games Decoration Day and Sunday afternoon at Washington Park as they lost both contests.

Saturday the Shroyer Cubs defeated the Reserves for the second time this season by a 7 to 4 score. The game was slow and uninteresting. Willie McDonnell, no run-no hit pitcher, started on the hill for the locals but only worked five rounds and retired in favor of Cyphers. McDonnell was given rotten support, his mates making seven hits behind him which cost a half dozen runs. Cyphers, who relieved him, worked out of a nice hole as the bases were full when he went in but he got the side in order and worked the rest of the distance in fine style, letting the visitors down with two hits.

The Cubs used three hurlers during the game and all of them were plenty good. Helke, a southpaw with plenty of smoke, started the game and went six and one third innings. The locals got six hits and four runs off him. Pierce was sent to the rubber next and fanned four in a row and then retired in favor of the veteran Don Clark, who also retired the side in one, two, three fashion.

The locals scored first in the second inning after two were gone and Cyphers drew a walk. Ritter popped to Norris who muffed the fly and Cyphers scored. Friend doubled to left scoring Ritter, Toland fanned.

The visitors went out in order in the second but in the third they scored four runs. Singles by R. Frank and Clark, a double by H. Frank, a wild pitch, two errors by Cain and a wild throw by Friend let the invaders score easily. They added another in the fifth when Cyphers threw wide to first on H. Frank's roller. Herman singled to deep center and blow scored H. Frank. The visitors kept right on and in the next round they scored another pair of tallies on a walk, hits by Norris and Thomas, a passed ball by Friend and an error by Early.

The locals broke into the scoring column in their half of the seventh when Cyphers was safe at first on Clark's muff. Ritter tripled to right center scoring Cyphers and scored a moment later on B. Frank's passed ball. This ended the scoring.

SUNDAY GAME
On Sunday afternoon the Reserves had their game with the Blue Ribbons tied up in the bag but the game came along and out the strings and victory just floated away. The final score was 8 to 4 with the locals on the short-end for the second time in as many days.

Cyphers, who worked in fine style up until the seventh, was taken out of the box and sent to right field in place of Holder while Myers, a recruit, went to the rubber. He got the side in the eighth although he walked one man. At the start of the ninth, with his team leading by a 4 to 2 score, he passed two batters accidentally. Cyphers was then rushed back into the game and his mates made four errors which let the visitors score a half-dozen runs and win the game. Cyphers was in good shape and whiffed eleven of the Ribbon players while he has yet to issue a walk in the four games he has pitched.

Lefty Leeper did mound duty for the winners. He had a nice assortment of hooks and held the locals to six hits while he fanned five and walked three. His support sagged several times as the locals only earned one run off his delivery.

The visitors scored in their half of the first after one was gone. Versie was safe when Early fumbled his grounder. H. Tangeman sacrificed him to second. R. Leeper, a real, honest-to-goodness clean-up man, doubled to left, scoring Versie. E. Tangeman rolled to Early for the third out.

The Reserves tied the score up in their half of the second after Holder popped to Tavenor. Friend drew a walk and went to second on Krimm's passed ball. Cyphers singled to left scoring Friend. Toland whiffed for the second out and Cain bounced to H. Tangeman.

The locals came right back in the third and scored another tally that gave them the lead. J. Fuller fled to Tavenor. Early singled and Ritter walked. Both advanced a base on a passed ball. Ritter scored when Krimm dropped Randall's third strike. Holder was passed, but Friend fled to Fisher and Cyphers grounded out to Fisher. The locals added two more counters in the fourth on Cain's hit. Ritter's triple and Versie's error.

The Ribbons were retired in order in the fourth and fifth but in the sixth, with one out, R. Leeper doubled to left. E. Tangeman fanned but Larimor doubled, scoring R. Leeper. Tavenor whiffed ending the inning.

Reserves will play the Troy Redmen next Sunday at Washington Park.

It will soon be tested on the Charles river.

"Baby Farmer"

Mrs. HELEN GEISEN-VOLK and DAUGHTER

Starvation of babes she kept in her New York City "baby farm," unsanitary conditions producing diseases in the infants, and substitution of the children were among the allegations authorities investigated against Mrs. Helen Auguste Geisen-Volk, shown above with her daughter, Alfreda, after she was held in $35,000 bail on the substitution charge. She was attacked in public by one frenzied mother. The bodies of several babies who died while in her care were ordered exhumed.

WATCH VIOLATORS

Glouster, June 1-B. T. Lefavor, head of the game protectors of this part of the state, has been advised to watch carefully all streams where fish have been planted by the state during the past few weeks. Many of these fish are large enough to tempt illegal fishermen, who are said to be operating.

REDS CONTRIBUTE CLASSY BALL CLUB TO LOWLY PHILLIES

Followers of the tobogganing Cincinnati Red baseball team are wondering if Manager J. C. Hendricks used good judgment in releasing George Harper and George Burns, outfielders and Louis Fonseca in fielders to the Philadelphia League Club.

These players have practically made the Phillies a contender for a first division berth in the league and their loss has been badly felt by the Reds.

George Burns, veteran outfielder, was growing old and was thought to have outlived his usefulness, but his stellar comeback with the lowly Phillies has disproved such thoughts and the veteran is hitting at nearly a .300 clip this year.

Louis Fonseca also was believed to be through as a major league ball player because of bad legs and inability to perform regularly. Fonseca was never given an actual chance with Cincinnati but in a position to play regularly with Philadelphia, has astounded the Reds and possibly himself with his hitting power. Fonseca is also no slouch at fielding and has proved a valuable addition to the infield.

George Harper, thought to be on the decline at Cincinnati, has blossomed out into a brilliant fielder and hitter with the Quaker nine and has rounded out the outfield of the Fletcher coached team.

Harper was always valuable as a utility outfielder and was one of the leagues best fielders.

Walter Kimmick has been standing opposing batters on their heads with the ash whenever he plays and the Philadelphia team today stands out as a classy outfit, one that may beat the Reds out in the long major league grind. Kimmick, it will be remembered, is another former Red as is Jimmy Ring, star Phillie pitcher and John Couch reserve pitcher.

MONEY AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments

Many people have asked, "What is the first investment I should make?" What is it then?

To this question there is one sound answer: "A Savings Account." It is true that savings accounts do not pay quite as high a return as good bonds do, but with a savings account the money is always where it can be drawn on instantly in case of emergency, 100 cents for every dollar invested.

When a good sized account has been built up by steady, systematic saving it is time enough to look about for stocks and bonds to buy. When you reach this stage, go to an officer of your bank or to a good investment banker and put the facts of your case before him.

Remember, however, that bankers and investment bankers are specialists in money matters and that it is far more likely that you are wrong in opinions as to the worth of any stock or bond than the banker is.

EXHIBIT AT PARIS APPLAUDING WORK OF U. S. ARTISTS

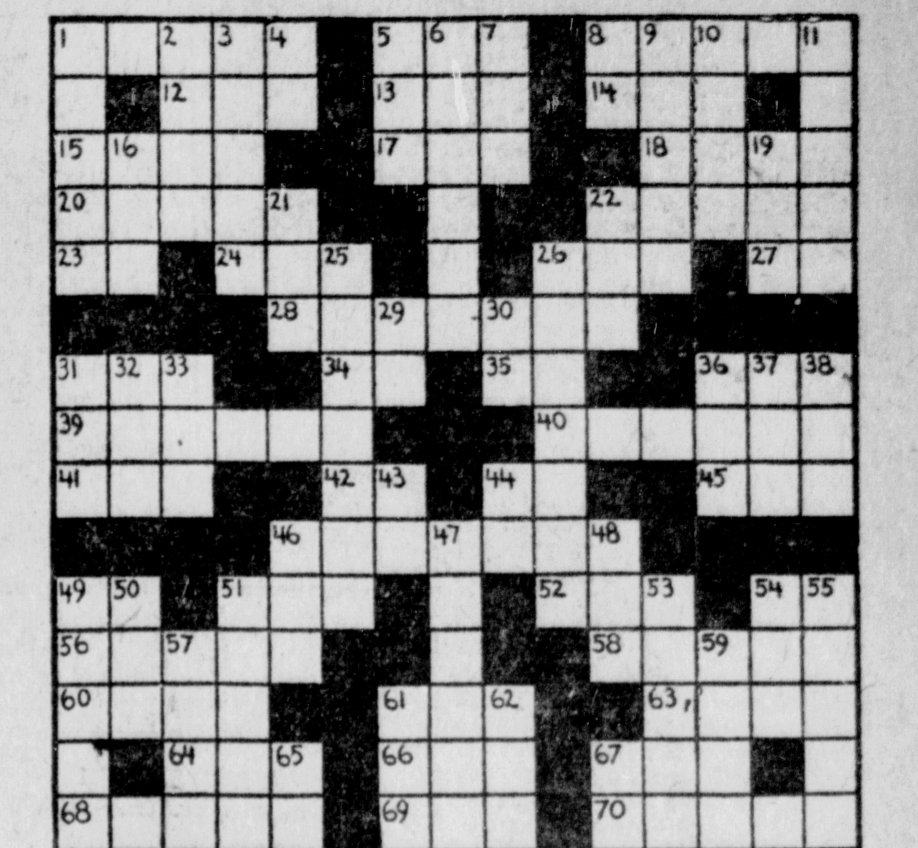

Paris, June 1.-American artists in Paris are now showing the cream of their efforts at the Societe des Artistes Francais, familiarly known as the "Old Salon."

The annual exhibition ranks among the oldest of Paris institutions, like the Academie Francaise or the Sorbonne, for it dates back as far as the year 1873. This Spring exposition is the one hundred and thirty-eighth which has been organized by this great group of artists of all nationalities who are assembled in the French capital. Under the regime which preceded the Third Republic, it was not an annual display. Made up first of a very small nucleus of artists, who exhibited in the Louvre, it gradually grew until it assumed proportions to fill the immense Grand Palais. This year it had to take to the temporary barracks in the Tuilleries Gardens, because the Palais is being occupied by a portion of the Exposition des Arts Decoratifs.

The dean of American painters in Paris, F. A. Bridgman, is showing Oriental subjects he knows and does so well. W. J. Reynolds has a charming decorative canvas of the Virgin, showing deep religious sentiment; and George Snowden Hill, of Syracuse, N. Y., is receiving many compliments on "Le Balcon," a very large picture, in real French spirit of two maids in balcony windows.

Miss Norah Cundell's "Study of a Child" is a series of portraits of unusual appeal, and Miss Norah Nielsen

Gray has an excellent portrait of Mrs. Robert B. Carslaw and her daughter, Andrew Law's "Alicia" shows unusual beauty of expression. Among the landscapes is a British theme, by Mr. Ertz, and "L'Automne a la Ferme" by Miss L. A. Foster. Mr. Kretzing shows a delightful "Matin d'Ete," and Donald Olyphant, one of the youngest of the American painters, shows a good seascape.

BRITISH SOCIETY MORALLY DECAYED CHARGE OF BISHOP

Manchester, June 1.-Society women throughout Britain are up in arms against a scathing speech delivered by Bishop Welldon, of Durham.

"The Bishop pilloried modern society and society women in no uncertain terms."

"Society in Great Britain," he said, "is itself a convincing sign of a moral decadence which would have been held a few years ago to be incredible."

"The revelation which has been most distressing and most appalling is that English women-educated women, too-have in open court not only confessed their immorality, but confessed it with an utter shamelessness, as though it were an axiom of their degraded nature that a life of sin, luxury, even though it be an alliance with a man of alien race and alien color, might be regarded as a glorious career."

NARROW VIEW
Lady Muir Mackenzie, wife of a celebrated judge, is one of those who condemn the words of the Bishop.

"One never hears," she says, "of the millions of people who live ordinary, normal, moral lives, but only of that very small percentage who 'go off the rails.' They are so few really that it is obviously unfair to take their mode of living as a standard by which to judge modern society."

"Why should so many clergymen take such narrow and bigoted views? For my part, I would pay little heed to what the average Church dignitary says about society. I prefer to abide by what our judges say. They are much more fair."

Miss St. John Montague, well-known society woman and authoress, strongly resents the Bishop's statement.

"Our women today," she says, "are as moral and well-conducted as ever they were. It is a shame to condemn a section of society because of the offenses of a few."

THINK SUICIDE

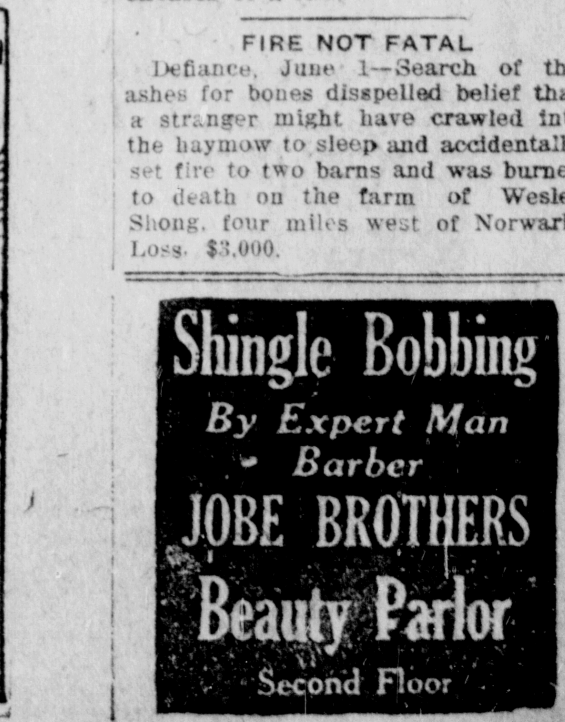

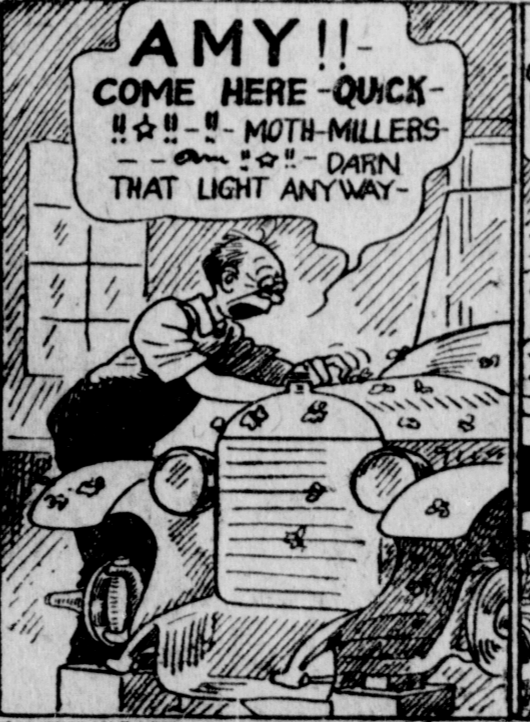

New York, June 1.-Mystery surrounds the death of Irvin A. Schuchert, thirty, musician, who either jumped or fell from the roof of the Times Square hotel, early today. The hotel room occupied by the dead man, was found locked. Police said they believed Schuchert jumped from the roof.

FIRE NOT FATAL

Defiance, June 1.-Search of the ashes for bones dispelled belief that a stranger might have crawled into the haymow to sleep and accidentally set fire to two barns and was burned to death on the farm of Wesley Shong, four miles west of Norwalk. Loss, $3,000.

LARGE ATTENDANCE WHEN EDUCATORS MEET IS EXPECTED

Indianapolis, Ind., June 1.—Predictions were made freely today that the annual convention of the National Education Association to be held in this city for an entire week, starting June 28, will attract a record-breaking attendance from all over the country.

The tentative program outlined by J. E. Morgan, editor of the Journal of the National Education Association, while on a visit here recently from Washington in connection with the convention, is unusually attractive and calls for the appearance of nationally known educators.

Unless preliminary plans are changed, the convention will be opened formally with a vesper service on the north steps of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument on the afternoon of Sunday, June 28, with Robert J. Aley, president of Butler College and an ex-president of the National Education Association, presiding.

The first general gathering of the association will be held on the evening of the opening day, when James J. Tigert, United States Commissioner of Education, is slated to deliver an address on "The Faith of the American People in Public Education." Then will come more talks by leaders in the educational field of the United States on "New World Movement in Education."

Meetings of the forty departments of the association and their allied groups will be held each afternoon, at which questions pertaining to their own work will be discussed.

National figures in the educational world who will address the convention during the week include Jesse H. Newlon, Superintendent of the Public Schools at Denver, Col.; James A. Drain, national commander of the American Legion; Glen Frank, editor of the Century Magazine; and W. P. Deering, president of Oakland City College and also president of the Indiana State Teachers' Association. Advance reservations for hotel accommodations during the convention already have started coming in.

MICHAEL'S MARRIAGE

By MICHAEL

CHAPTER LVII

It was all over. They were married.

From the balcony Michael and Lilah looked down on the throng of dancers. They felt a proprietary interest in the crowd, for each one of those persons had just witnessed the most wonderful event in the world—their wedding. They smiled happily at each other. Lilah crept a little closer to him, and placed her hand in his.

"You're the most wonderful man in the world, Michael!"

He was not stirred, but he squeezed her hand appreciatively. His nerves were jangling. He imagined that Lonnie had forgotten them, that their train was already gone. He saw in his mind's eye Lonnie lying drunk in the card-room; perhaps, even, Lonnie was splashing around in the swimming-pool in his dress clothes, hilariously celebrating. But even as he worried thus, he caught Lonnie's eye. He took Lilah's arm.

"Come, pet; it's time for us to go."

"Very well. Find Katherine Capper and tell her I'm ready to change. She had my dress and my traveling bag."

"No, come on. You're not going to change."

She held back. "Why—"

"Come on, and I'll explain."

"But—"

He took her by the arm more firmly.

"We're going to fool them all," he began, when they were outside with Lonnie. "We're going to drive to Winchester and get the train there. Lonnie has it arranged. We'll be on the train, laughing at them when the train gets into town. They were going to try some funny stuff."

"But I can't get on the train this way. And I haven't seen mother to tell her goodbye."

"Oh, your mother will be at the station. And here's your wrap to put around you. Lonnie got your bag and dress from Katherine."

He helped her into the waiting car, and Lonnie leaped into the driver's seat. In a second they were in motion.

"I should think you would have told me about this." She was pouting.

"Why, Lilah! I—" She looked

as if she were going to burst into tears, and he was in a panic.

Lonnie turned and grinned. "This is the way to fool them."

Lilah spoke out, aggrieved: "I don't think this is nice at all. It's horrid! All those people there waiting to tell us goodbye!"

She turned her face towards the darkness, indignant. Lonnie's eyes met Michael's ashen gaze. Thereafter he kept them on the road before him.

"Dearest, I didn't think you would mind. It's a good joke on them. They were going to rag us. Perhaps they would have made us miss the train." He spoke in a pleading tone. His hand sought hers. With lips compressed, she still looked into the darkness. But in a moment she turned her face toward him and allowed herself to be kissed.

When she spoke it was as if she had just won a battle with herself. "Oh, it's all right. Only some of the people may be offended."

There was no miscarriage in Lonnie's plans. They were aboard the train when it left Winchester. There was a catch in Michael's throat as he waved Lonnie—good old Lonnie!—goodbye.

They turned out the lights in the compartment, and waited excitedly at the window for the train to reach the union station. Michael was reminded to tell Lilah: "Sally promised me today she would stay." In the city, when they saw Katherine and an accompanying crowd on the station platform, they ran to the vestibule of their car and called shrilly.

With a cry the pack was upon them, and rice snowed down and filled the air. Mother Pharely fought her way to the edge of the vestibule. "Daughter, I was so worried!" They embraced. "Do take good care of her, Michael."

Mrs. Pharely cried, her eyes wet. "I will." His words floated out upon the air, strangely audible, as the train pulled out. The pack laughed.

Not until the last light of the city was behind them did they go slowly back to the compartment.

FORMER VICE PRESIDENT THOMAS R. MARSHALL DIES

PROMINENT INDIANA DEMOCRAT SUCCEUMBS AT CAPITAL MONDAY

Washington, June 1.—Thomas
Riley Marshall of Indiana, former
vice president of the United States, died here this morning.

here with a severe cold, contracted during a trip to the capital from his home in Indianapolis.

His condition had improved
during the last few days, however,
and physicians regarded him as on the way to recovery.

The end came at 9:40 a.m., while
up in bed reading his bible.

Marshall was 71 years old last March. He was born in North Manchester, Indiana, and was educated at Wabash College.

After practicing law at Columbia
City, Ind., for many years, Marshall
party in his native state and served

The Democratic convention at Baltimore in 1912, which nominated
Woodrow Wilson for president, chose Marshall for second place on the ticket.

He served as vice president
during the administration of Wilson
and has since been engaged in lecturing in various parts of the country while taking no active part in national
politics.

SECOND ACCIDENT VICTIM SUCCEUMBS

Harry Hugley, 40, colored, of Dayton, died at the Miami Valley Hospital in Dayton Sunday morning from injuries he received in an automobile
accident near the Xenia corporation
line on the Xenia and Dayton Pike
Sunday morning, May 24.

Hugley was injured and another man was instantly killed when a machine in which five colored men were riding skidded on the wet road and
overturned.

the McClellan Hospital, Xenia, from
Valley Hospital.

When taken to Dayton, Hugley
was first believed to be suffering
from nothing more serious than a
broken shoulder and broken hip, but
rupture of the intestine was later
discovered.

The driver of the machine, J. W.
Davis, is facing a charge of manslaughter here.

To Establish "Summer White House" At Stearns Home Until

Washington, June 1.—President
Coolidge this week starts on a trio
of trips out of Washington, the third
of which will take him away from
for the entire summer.

Two excursions are planned within the next six days—the first to Annapolis, Maryland, on Wednesday, where he will address the 1925
graduating class of the United
to St. Paul, Minn., on Saturday
where he will take part in the Norse-American centennial celebration.

Two weeks after his return
from the west, the president is
scheduled to leave for Swampscott,
Mass., where, at the summer home
of his friend, Frank W. Stearns, he
will establish the first "summer
Lawn, near Asbury Park, N. J., in 1916. The Bay State will claim the
Labor Day.

The Annapolis trip, to be made by
motor, promises to be somewhat out
a plan is afoot where by Mr.
Coolidge, unknowingly is to become
a featured player in a national
naval academy being filmed by a private motion picture corporation.

The journey to St. Paul is also without its features, for when the presidential train leaves Washington Saturday afternoon, it will write
"finis" to Mr. Coolidge's efforts to travel just as any other ordinary
citizen might.

Just as he went to Chicago last December, so the president sought
this time to again book passage on
one of the regular, fast Pullman
trains, at no more expense than
would be incurred by any other
passenger.

dition is not so good. He had a restless night. Pulse ninety; temperature normal."

Yesterday his condition was given
as "not entirely satisfactory" due to
an attack of hiccoughs.

Donahay Favors Tests On
Fourth of July

New York, June 1.—While not militantly enthusiastic over the idea, most
of the governors of the forty-eight
states are willing to co-operate with President Coolidge and the war department in the suggested plan to make July 4 annual "defense day"
from a national standpoint.

This was declared today in a nationwide poll of gubernatorial sentiment taken by International News service.

Many of the governors feel that a day should be set apart each year on
which the nation should take stock of
its defense situation when state
troops should be mobilized for inspection and survey and the thoughts of the people generally devoted to the preparedness that may never be necessary but which must always be observed.

But not all of them by any means
believe that this day should be Armistice Day, or originally proposed by the general staff, nor do they wholeheartedly approve of President Cool-idge's alternative suggestion of July
4. Not a few of the state executives,
while declaring they would "go along"
with the federal government, if July 4th is selected, expressed the view
that "a better day could be selected,"
than either Armistice Day or the Fourth.

Governor Angus W. McLean (Democrat) of North Carolina, summed up
the views of many of his colleagues
in other states when he said:

"I heartily approve of President Cool-idge's plan to designate a national defense day. I believe in exerting every effort to abolish war and settle international disputes by peaceful means,
but until effective measures for this
our national defense should not be overlooked.

"It is my intention to authorize mobilization of the National Guard on the Fourth of July if requested,
though I believe the designation of
some other day would enable us to
effect more complete mobilization."

In a similar vein was the view by Governor A. V. Donahay, (Democrat)
of Ohio. He said:

"If July 4 is finally designated by
the chief executive as Defense Day I
shall issue such proclamation as is desired by the president. It is my
belief, however, that a day better
suited than the Fourth of July for
this test could be chosen.

"The great national significance
of this date, in my belief, will submerge the interest in Defense Day."
mind is Governor George W. P. Hunt, Arizona.

"I see no objection to having a national defense day," said Governor Hunt. "I do not, however, think that
such holidays as Armistice Day and
July Fourth should be utilized for this purpose. I feel both these days
should be devoted to the cause of
peace rather than consideration of
further military activity. However,
if the president fixes upon the Fourth
I feel we should co-operate—at the same time expressing the hope that it will not become an annual occurrence."

An even stronger view was expressed by Governor Henry L. Fuqua, of Louisiana.

"It is impracticable to mobilize our
am inclined to think an annual defense day is too often. I feel that every two, or even four years, is
sufficient for a test, and not calculated to emphasize and foster a too military spirit."

BLONDE AMAZON IS SOUGHT FOR MURDER

Boston, June 1.—At all blonde woman of such strikingly large proportions as to be known as "The Blonde Amazon," was being sought by police today in the brutal murder and robery of Mrs. Mae Price, wardrobe mistress of a musical comedy show and known as the "mother of the chorus girls."

A former bellboy of the Hotel Hollis in which Mrs. Price was slain, today told police he had overheard
"the blonde Amazon" and the murder victim in a bitter row several days before the woman's death.

Weather Adds Crowning Feature To Impressive Me- morial Day Exercises In Xenia—Parade Staged In Afternoon

Under perfect weather conditions
and with fitting ceremonies at all
cemeteries, industry paused while patriotic organizations and civilians paid respect to the soldier dead in the annual Memorial Day observance
Saturday.

the entire day and enabled customary
observance in Greene County to be

The usual Memorial Day parade,
the crowning feature of the day's exercises in Xenia was composed of various patriotic organizations of the city with a generous sprinkling of military units, veterans of the Civil War, borne to the cemetery in autos, their sons who fought in the Spanish-American War, the young veterans of the late World War, Boy Scout troops, and women who belong to various organizations and auxiliaries.

Forming on East Main Street, the parade moved west on Main to Dayton Avenue and thence to the cemetery, passing in review before hundreds of onlookers who lined the streets. The parade disbanded at the cemetery.

The parade included members of the Police Department; the Ohio
Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home
Cadet Band and Battalion; Company
L, 147th Infantry, Ohio National Guard; Company L Band; Sons of
Veterans; Lewis Post, No. 347, G. A.
R.; United Spanish American War
Veterans; American Legion; World
War Veterans; Boy Scouts; W. R.
C.; D. of V.; Legion Auxiliary; D. A.
R. and Xenia Fire Department, followed by civic societies.

Services at Woodland Cemetery began with the G. A. R. ritual and memorial to the unknown dead by Lewis Relief Corps, several song selections by a male chorus and Lincoln's Gettysburg Address delivered by Captain Charles L. Darlington, past commander of the American Legion. The Rev. F. W. Stanton declared.

Plunges Into Crowd
at Race

Cleveland, O., June 1.—Fifteen persons were in hospitals here today,
two of them seriously injured as a
result of an accident that marred
the running of the What Price Glory?
race track.

The accident occurred when the
driver of What Price Glory? in whose honor the sweepstakes limited to automobiles for which the owner was willing to accept $50, lost control of his car in the semi-finals and ploughed
into a crowd of spectators. Thirteen
were hurt, the most seriously injured
being Joseph Andrews, 35, of Cleveland, and James H. Little, 68 of Altoona, Pa.

Two others were hurt as a result
of a traffic jam as the thousands of

BUSINESS AS USUAL IN GREENE COUNTY SUNDAY DESPITE LAW

Xenia and Greene County merchants
kept their places of business open
issued by Attorney F. L. Johnson Friday.

Merchants refused to close and kept
"open house" the entire day while patrons streamed in and out in satisfaction and perhaps astonishment at the "luxuries" were not demanded them.

Attorney Johnson, who is demanding a "blue law" county on Sundays on behalf of unknown clients, declared Monday that two private detectives, state men, combed the county Sunday for violations of the Sunday closing law but were forced to leave prematurely before affidavits
could be prepared.

Attorney Johnson declared however, that the detectives' search had not gone unrewarded and that they had procured the wanted evidence
and names for prosecution either late Monday or Tuesday when the result
of their efforts will be announced.

Merchants quietly performed business as usual with few exceptions, serene in the belief that they were safe and that Attorney Johnson would not dare to substantiate his declarations with affidavits and subsequent arrests. Business was better than usual they said.

Attorney Johnson gives a promise

HOPES FOR REPEAL OF DRY LAWS GIVEN BLOW BY WET SOLON

King Says Modification Is Only
Prohibition

Washington, June 1.—A death blow
to the hopes of wets that the national
prohibition law may be repealed if
the Coolidge administration's rum
war fails, was sounded here today by Senator William King, Democrat, of Utah, who led congressional opposition to enactment of the eighteenth amendment. King declared there can be no real change in the dry statute
even though government finally confesses its inability to properly enforce the law.

To restore old fashioned beer and other intoxicating liquors he said, would require a constitutional amendment with its ratification by thirty six states. Such an overthrow
of prohibition he added, is hopeless
during the present generation.

The only possible modification,
King asserted, might come by action
of congress to legalize 2.75 percent
beer and wine. This percentage of alcoholic content he explained, already has been termed "non-intoxicating" by government experts and therefore is not banned by the eightteenth amendment.

As a member of the Couzens senatorial committee, which adjourned its hearings for the summer, King made
a study of the enforcement situation.
He declared his observations revealed serious defects in the prohibition service, due chiefly to the failure of enforcement officials to seek "high-ups" in the bootlegging industry.

"No matter how much a failure the government's prohibition drive becomes, congress will be without the power to repeal the statute or to liberalize the law," said King.

"I see no possibility, certainly no
probability, of any modification of
the eighteenth amendment. The only
real modification must come through
a constitutional amendment and that virtually is an impossibility. Without such an amendment, congress is powerless to legalize the sale or manufacture of any intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes."

The wets, King said, will have to
be satisfied with an effort to legalize
2.75 per cent beer and wine. A drive
for this modification is anticipated.

MAN'S INHUMANITY—!

New York, June 1.—Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, secretary of taken commencing today, their truthful age must be given.

Mrs. Knapp said today that

Detroit, Mich., June 1.—Although
Henry Ford is keenly interested in the development of commercial aviation, he never once has set foot in an airplane and in all probability never will. This is what he brought out in a discussion today of the recently-created Ford Air Services between Dearborn and Chicago.

"I have never been off the ground
in a plane," he said. "The chances

Coolidge Has Not Suggested Change In Policy

Washington, June 1.—A movement has been launched here in unofficial circles close to the administration to stage the forthcoming Franco-American debt negotiations in London, instead of either in Paris or Washington.

There were no indications today
that this suggestion had come directly from President Coolidge or any member of his cabinet and for the present they permitted no deviation from the understanding that it was
the desire of the administration to
have all debt funding negotiations
take place in the United States.

In the meantime, however, they are
waiting with interest the reaction in Europe to the suggestion that debt
conference be held on neutral territory. Officials pointed out that ample time remained to decide upon this
detail after formal notification had
been received from France that she
was ready to open negotiations.

If the French government at that
time expressed an unwillingness to send a debt commission to Washington and the United States stood firm against sending an American commission to Paris the time would then be ripe to extend a formal invitation to both the American and French governments to have their debt negotiations in the British capital.

Such an invitation would be necessary in the view of the administration as it would be contrary to diplomatic courtesies for either the United States or France to invite themselves to England for an international conference in which England had no official part. It was deemed not improbable today that the United States would consent to open debt negotiations with France in London if the government failed in getting a French commission to come to Washington.

We are gathered here once more to pay tribute to the dead soldiers of three wars. As I observed the depleted ranks of the soldiers of the G. A. R. in the parade today I thought of how Joseph Addison in one of his classics, represents humanity as a great throng passing with solemn tread over a great bridge with four and twenty arches. The bridge was set with numerous secret trap doors, which unexpectedly opened ever and anon, and the passenger would drop through to his death. When the last arch was reached but few remained to pass under it. The G. A. R. is passing over such a bridge as that. Under many arches you have marched, but ever and anon the door of death opens and a comrade drops out of the procession. Likewise the ranks of the Spanish-American war veterans are thinning out. Also the American Legion boys are dropping out, a few hundred every year, and fifty years from now but few will remain to tell the thrilling story of Chateau Thierry and the Argonne Forest. What then? Shall Memorial Day pass in the oblivion of history? Shall silver eulogized orators cease to tell the story of your heroism? Will generations to come plant no flags and scatter no flowers on your graves?

Ah, No! a thousand times no! I put my ears to the earth, and I hear the tread of another army, marching with manly vigor and patriotic reverence. It is the army of the Sons of Veterans. They are climbing the hills of history, and looking down upon the battle fields drenched with the loyal blood of their fathers. The daughters of veterans will join with them to keep green your graves, and hold in everlasting remembrance the deeds of your valor. Do not fear; you will not be forgotten. All of you shall have a monument. It may not be of brass, or bronze, or marble, but it will be of something more lasting. It will be the imperishable monument of this Memorial Day. In 1848 in the city of Paris a great tree was planted with solemn ceremony. The occasion was one of unusual interest, and marked the new epoch in the nation's struggle for freedom. Victor Hugo was the orator of the day, and he called the tree "The Tree of Liberty." Memorial Day might well be called a "Tree of Liberty." It was planted in 1868 when Gen. John A. Logan, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., issued a request that the Thirtieth of May be set aside for that purpose Congress made it a legal holiday and now for fifty-five years we have been gathering under the branches of this illustrious tree every thirtieth of May, to remember our fallen heroes with the bestowal of flowers, sweet emblems of life's purest joys and tokens of the heart's best love.

Some call this Decoration Day; others call it Memorial Day. In memory of what? Ah! how shall we answer that question? You may say in memory of a nation's peril and a nation's triumph, but does that express it? You may say in memory of the silent heroes who fell at Shiloh, Vicksburg, Chickamauga, Antietam, Gettysburg, Mission Ridge, and Appomattox, where these once more looks down upon a blood drenched land. You may say in memory of Manila Bay, Santiago, San Juan, and El Caney of the Spanish-American war. You may say in memory of Chateau Thierry, the Argonne Forest, and the 24,000 American soldiers lying in the beautiful cemetery at Romagne, France, who fell victims of German militarism during the World War. But do these express it all? No, No.

These Civil War veterans will remember today that thousands of their comrades sleep beneath the sod, made sacred by their life's blood. These Spanish-American War veterans will remember that thousands of their comrades sleep beneath the silent skies, which bent in pitying mercy when they fought for Cuba's freedom. The American Legion veterans will remember the thousand of their comrades sleeping yonder in Flanders field, where the poppies grow, in Arlington Cemetery, and other silent grave yards all over this country. What a day of memory!

There are several reasons why we should keep this thirtieth day of May as a sacred memorial day:

First, that it may ever be to us a day of Memory.

There are those who think we ought not to recall the memory of the dead, that it is unkind to speak to the bereaved of their departed ones. They would console hearts by making them forget. They would prescribe oblivion for the cure of wounded spirits. This is a mistake. The very memory of our dead blesses us. We are made more tender and gentle toward the living, and our hearts are more considerate toward those who belong to the great fraternity of the bereaved.

I lived in North Carolina five years. Confederate Decoration is a month earlier than ours but on the thirtieth of May it is a custom with many communities to gather at the cemetery, where for years they have been burying their dead, and decorate the graves with flowers, etc.

The observance of this Memorial Day will soften the hearts of a whole nation because we will be compelled to remember. We will remember the sad days when the boys said goodbye to the home folks, not knowing that they should ever come back. We will remember the long days and weeks when we had no word from the front, and when at last a letter came, it was in a strange hand writing, saying that John had been slain in action, bravely fighting for his flag and his country. We will remember the retreats and drives, the defeats and victories, the days of broken hearts and the days of shouting the day when the news came that the war was over, and the day when some of the boys came tramping home, leaving their comrades to sleep in far away fields. Yes, fellow citizens, this is a day of memory, and as we go forth to scatter the garlands on the graves of our fallen heroes, all over the north and the south, there will come up a silent voice saying "Do this in remembrance of me." While memory lasts these dead shall not be forgotten.

"Sleep on, embalmed and sainted dead! Dear as the blood ye gave; No impious footstep here shall tread The herbage of your grave! Nor shall your glory be forgot While fame her record keeps, Or honor points the hallowed spot Where valor proudly sleeps."

Second: We need this day to keep alive the spirit of true patriotism. The love of country and the love for

God are the two pillars which support the fabric of a nation. If either one dies out the nation is in peril; if both die out the nation topples to its decay. True patriots have fought and died in all lands and climes; the Swiss in his mountain luxuries, the Frenchman at his barricade, the Roman on the banks of the Tiber, the negro on his island, but often they were spurred to duty by rights threatened or wrongs endured. Patriotism fired the Spartan at Thermopylae, the Carthaginian in the plains of Zama, the Spaniard at Vittoria, the German on the banks of the Rhine. Many men in many nations have fought for conquest, for glory, or for a name, but where in all the range of history can you find men who laid down their lives with a nobler spirit of patriotism than did the men who fell in the Civil War or the Spanish-American War, or the Americans in the World War? Think of it for a moment. The men who fought in the Union army were fighting Americans, not foreigners. They were brothers fighting brothers, fathers taking up arms against sons and sons against fathers. Can there be any greater test of patriotism? Then the boys of the Spanish-American war fought not for more territory, not for honor, nor for conquest; not against a foe threatening our shores, or invading our harbors. They fought purely for the liberty of oppressed Cuba. It was a humanitarian war. They died solely for others. Then what could prompt 2,000,000 American soldiers to leave mothers, wives, sisters, sweet hearts and go 3,000 miles to the bloody fields of France to fight the German hordes? Was it for mere personal honor? By no means. It was pure patriotism which fired their breasts. They fought for those high principles of Democracy against Autocracy; for world peace against militarism; for God, home and native land against infidelity, greed and despotism. It has well been said that the American soldier has always unsheathed his sword in the interest of humanity. There are brave, patriotic men in France, but I am wondering if there are 2,000,000 men in France willing to leave their homes, as our boys left theirs, and go 3,000 miles to fight a foe which was not directly oppressing them. Ladies and gentlemen, I would impress upon your minds that patriotism is the heritage of the American soldier, and it is the heritage of us all. As our soldiers have always fought under the inspiration of true patriotism, so we should be willing to fight every evil which threatens our land with the same true spirit of love for country.

Once in the days of the Republic of Rome an immense chasm appeared in the midst of the city. So between the north and south, between America and Spain, and between America and Germany, awful chasms opened their mouths, and not until millions of our noblest boys were sacrificed in them were these horrid mouths closed. This

Third: We need this day to teach us the terrible cost of peace.

When Paul was arrested in Jerusalem, we are told that Lysias, the chief captain, asked him if he was a Roman citizen. Upon being assured that he was a Roman citizen, the chief captain said "With a great sum obtained I this freedom." From this we learn that there was a time when Roman citizenship was bought and sold, and the price was very high. Freedom is never cheap. Peace is never obtained at a small cost. I once heard an orator on Decoration Day compare the cost of the civil war to that of other wars—Revolutionary, Franco-Prussian, Crimean and it was a revelation. It cost more lives, more money, more broken hearts than any of these. In the 2,240 battles of those bloody four years more lives were lost than were in all America at the close of the Revolutionary War. When we look at the stars and stripes yonder, and remember that we live under its protection in a land of peace, let us not forget that the peace we enjoy was purchased at a fearful cost. But as great as was the cost of the Civil War, far greater was the cost of the World War. The Civil War cost a million men; the World War cost ten million men; the Civil War cost one billion dollars; the World War cost Germany alone forty-six billion. If we ever have another world war it will bankrupt the nations. I do not say the only way to have peace is through war, but I do say that the history of peace through freedom shows that it has ever been purchased at some kind of a fearful sacrifice. President Harding speaking at the burial of the 5,212 bodies brought back from the graves of France, said, "There is never a death but somewhere a new life; never a sacrifice but somewhere an atonement; never a service but somehow an achievement." On this Memorial Day it should be burned into every heart that the peace we enjoy has come through the supreme sacrifice of noble sons and daughters. Not only should it beget in every heart a spirit of everlasting gratitude, but it should cause us this day to highly resolve "that these dead shall not have died in vain. With Kipling let us sing, "God of our fathers, known of old, Lord of our far-flung battle line, Beneath whose awful hands we hold Dominion over palm and pine: Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet, Lest we forget, lest we forget!"

Have you ever noticed that all cemeteries are beautified for the thirtieth of May? A man told me the other day he expected to leave his business a day or two before the 30th and go over to the country grave yard in an adjoining county to decorate his parents' graves. Not only soldiers' graves will be decorated, but family plots will be fixed up, and old slabs will be straightened, and blossoms will be tenderly placed upon the sacred spots.

In olden times we are told the Hebrews, returning from their burial places, used to pluck the grass from the field, then throw it over their heads, suggestive of the resurrection. But on this day we pick not the grass but the flowers, and throw them not over our heads, but right down on the dear spots where lie the dearest ones of earth. Go out to the cemeteries of our country tomorrow, and behold the tombs wreathed in flowers, the graves spread with garlands, the ledges of mausoleums set with bouquets and the private vaults made fragrant with the bursting buds. Flowers, flowers, flowers! Can we find any thing more appropriate, with which to decorate our graves? We would not decorate them with jewels of gold or silver; we would not place medals of brass or iron upon them; neither would we decorate them with the dust of diamonds; but we would bring our tributes in flowers. The garlands can best speak the language of our hearts today. We "say it in flowers" the custom of strewing flowers on the graves of our dead soldiers originated in the South, among poor ex-slaves. They were too poor to bring anything else, so, having plenty of flowers in that land of sunshine, they plucked them, and with grateful hearts scattered them upon the graves of those who had fought for their liberty. It is a beautiful custom. Bring on your flowers, then, and spare them not! Bring the snowballs, the peonies, the tulips, the lilies of the valley, the lilacs, the hyacinths, plain flowers and costly flowers, wild flowers and cultivated flowers, bring them on, and let our cities of the dead be turned into flower gardens. It will honor the dead; it will comfort the living.

Not costly domes, nor marble towers, Shall mark where friendship comes to weep, Let clustering vines and fragrant flowers Tell where the Nation's heroes sleep.

They merit all our hearts can give, Our praises and our love they claim; Long shall their precious names survive, Held sacred by immortal fame.

Blest be the land for which they fought— The land where freedom's banners wave; The land by blood and treasure bought Where dwell the free, where sleep the brave. In conclusion, ladies and gentlemen, it remains for us to keep alive the immortal principles of right, justice, liberty, and peace, for which our soldiers fell. Let our tongues cleave to the roof of our mouths, and our right hands forget their cunning, if we forget God and home and native land and

Jack Worrell, Beaver Creek Township, entered a plea of not guilty to a second charge of possessing liquor when arraigned in Probate Court Monday morning, and in default of $1,000 bond, was remanded to the County Jail. A date for his hearing was not set Monday by Judge S. C. Wright.

Worrell was arrested Saturday by Deputy Sheriffs John Raughn and George Spencer and County Detective F. E. Gary, who raided his home and confiscated six gallons of liquor, numerous bottles, jugs and containers.

TWO INJURED WHEN MOTORS COLLIDE

Leonard Jones, West Main Street, had his foot badly crushed and was otherwise bruised and Lewis McCoy, Stevenson Road, his companion, was cut and bruised, when the Ford touring car in which they were riding, was struck by another machine, six miles east of Jamestown, Friday night.

Mr. Jones and Mr. McCoy were returning to Xenia and attempted to pass through a bridge when the other machine, occupied by a family by the name of Friend, from Dayton, collided with them.

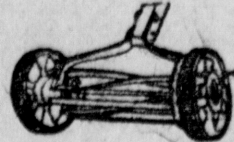

The Ford car was overturned and Mr. Jones and Mr. McCoy were thrown out. Mr. Jones foot being pinned beneath the car. He was severely bruised and Mr. McCoy received cuts on his hand, arm and elbow. The machine in which they were riding was demolished.

Occupants of the other car were unhurt and their car was undamaged.

MODISH MITZI—Life In The Country Has Its Inconveniences

Three handed bridge isn't much of a game, but what else are our three heroines to do on a sunny afternoon when they have decided that only their prettiest clothes can be honor to the season? Anyway it gives you an opportunity to admire the three smart hats that show the

The spider is not, as you might think, an uninvited guest. We invited him ourself—knowing the aversion of these young women to his kind—so that this sketch might show you the three gay dresses that match the hats so nicely. Polly's is flowered chiffon, Mitzi's white crepe de chine with rows of tucks to give a plaid effect. Adelaide's is printed crepe de chine with a skirt made of four full flounces of the material. The intruder did his stuff very well. Polly was about to bid six hearts, hopefully, on the dummy.

THE most important question confronting the American people today is law enforcement. We do not need more laws. What we need is the enforcement of those we already have," declares Edwin A. Olson, United States attorney for the northern district of Illinois.

Ninety-nine of all our prevailing ills would quickly disappear if there would be a constituted equal and impartial enforcement of all our laws, believes the Federal official. "Justice delayed is justice denied," declares Mr. Olson, who, when he took office three years ago, had the difficult opportunity of bringing to trial a well known national swindler who was walking the streets of Chicago after having been indicted in 1914 for a crime he had committed in 1911. When he took office in 1923 the prohibition amendment had been in force more than three years, yet the condition that prevailed in Chicago, because of the lack of official enforcement by state authorities, was appalling. With but apparent ease Attorney Olson cleaned up the situation in eighteen months and from his work he gleaned the working axiom that he would have the country adopt to overcome the deluge of its present ills.

"Show me a public official who refuses to enforce prohibition laws and I will show you a public official who will refuse to enforce any law when approached by his political master," guarantees Mr. Olson. At the time of his induction into office there were 7,000 saloons, soft-drink parlor violators, wet cabarets and breweries in Chicago. No city, county or state officials were doing anything to overcome the situation. With hordes of money the illicit traffickers were able to corrupt enforcement officials and were perfectly free to provide the poisonous liquor. But inside of eighteen months over 2,000 illegal purveyors were convicted and punished. They included not only the "West Madison street bums" but also the exclusive "Gold Coast" violators. One loop hotel was even closed.

But all of this work should have been done by the state courts instead of the Federal courts and one Federal judge did the work of what 48 state judges should have done. For this, and similar reasons, the Federal courts of the country are now over-crowded with thousands of cases of minor importance that the state judiciary should have taken care of. Delinquent justice is a wrong suffered by law abiding citizens and the blame for lack of strict enforcement is directly laid at the feet of public officials. Public officials who do not enforce the 18th amendment have one stock alibi, and that is, that public sentiment makes convictions difficult, if not impossible. But the true fact is that it is political sentiment that keeps them from enforcing the law.

When Mr. Olson became Federal attorney there were some 2,000 cases on the criminal dockets in the courts. Criminals were walking the streets of the city and menacing citizens. In eighteen months 5,000 cases had been cleared from the courts, disposed of completely, this number being greater than the average trial convictions that were obtained during the previous seven years. The voice of public opinion, that of each individual voter, is the only help that the present condition throughout the country can expect. Delay is the strongest card in the deck of the criminal and in ninety-nine out of every 100 cases delay results in the freedom of the criminal.

ADVOCACY of personal economy by President Coolidge is being assailed by Representative Davey, Democrat of Ohio, as hurtful to business. Which is more harmful to substantial business, personal economy, or the banks full of paper? And what kind of Democrat is this? Why, a few years ago the Democrats were applauding McAdoo because of his ascertain that he wore patched pants. And McAdoo didn't have to wear them, if we judge by his oil salary.

Ham-Stuffed Peppers: The following recipe will stuff eight green sweet peppers: Mix together one cup of boiled rice, one cup of broth or leftover meat gravy thinned, one cup of cooked ham, 2 tablespoons of softened butter, one cup of diced uncooked celery, a little chopped parsley if you have it, one half teaspoon of salt, one medium sized raw onion finely chopped, and either one large fresh tomato cut small, or one half pint cup of the more solid parts of canned tomato. Cut the eight peppers in half lengthwise, remove seeds, and parboil in water to cover—that is simmer about ten minutes; drain off this water and stuff the 16 halves. Top each with buttered bread crumbs and bake in a hot oven for 15 minutes. This dish will be used for the meat dish on Thursday evening; the housekeeper will find it an economy of labor to broil more steed ham than she needs for breakfast on Wednesday morning so as to have a cupful of ham left overs next day.

Eggplant a la Marie: Boil an egg plant for 15 minutes in salted to cover, then cut a slice from its top and scoop out its pulp. Chop this pulp and drain off a little of its moisture. Now make a sauce as follows: Melt two tablespoons of butter in a saucepan, rub two tablespoons of flour into it, add a pinch of salt, and stir in three quarters of a cup of sweet milk; when it comes to the boiling point, add one fourth cup of cooked and drained spaghetti and one cup of cooked green peas, then add almost all of the pulp which you previously removed from the inside of the eggplant. Restuff the vegetable shell with this, pile buttered crumbs on top and lay slices of uncooked bacon over the crumbs. Bake for 20 minutes in a hot oven, on a greased pan. Serve hot.

Cheese "Pudding": Supper Dish: This is to be served Sunday night. Beat one egg yolk with one cup of granulated sugar; add one pound of mild American cheese which has

Today's Talks

These are three sterling words. My reason for making note of them here is that a young lady by the name of Miss Dorothy Lee, who is the daughter of the Vice-president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, recently won the title of "Sunny Jim" at her school.

The title is bestowed each year at Bryn Mawr College upon the student who during the year has shown most conspicuously these qualities.

For life itself isn't hard. It's the way we look at it and take it up. Joyousness, fortitude and faithfulness! The words make you feel like going right out and taking some great hill "on high" just to repeat them.

I wish titles like the one at Bryn Mawr were bestowed in every high school and college in the world. Just consider what the offices and homes of this land, and every land, would become with these words as a motto over the entrances.

Nothing is truer than the assertion that we only take out of life what we put into it. Although it has often been proved that we really take out much more than we apparently put in where we give without thought of taking anything out.

Joyousness, fortitude and faithfulness on our part always draws others with like qualities toward us.

Plant lovely flowers in one spot in your yard and you are inspired at once to have them all over your place.

Beauty of mind and heart are contagious.

Too many people think that too many things matter. As a statement of fact, only a few things matter at all. And three of these things I would name as—joyousness, fortitude and faithfulness.

WATCH VIOLATORS

Glouster, June 1—B. T. Lefavor, head of the game protectors of this part of the state, has been advised to watch carefully all streams where fish have been planted by the state during the past few weeks. Many of these fish are large enough to tempt illegal fishermen, who are said to be operating.

REDS CONTRIBUTE CLASSY BALL CLUB TO LOWLY PHILLIES

Followers of the tobogganing Cincinnati Red baseball team are wondering if Manager J. C. Hendricks used good judgment in releasing George Harper and George Burns, outfielders and Louis Fonseca infielders to the Philadelphia League Club.

These players have practically made the Phillies a contender for a first division berth in the league and their loss has been badly felt by the Reds.

George Burns, veteran outfielder, was growing old and was thought to have outlived his usefulness, but his stellar comeback with the lowly Phillies has disproved such thoughts and the veteran is hitting at nearly a .300 clip this year.

Louis Fonseca also was believed to be through as a major league ball player because of bad legs and inability to perform regularly. Fonseca was never given an actual chance with Cincinnati but in a position to play regularly with Philadelphia, has astounded the Reds and possibly himself with his hitting power. Fonseca is also no slouch at fielding and has proved a valuable addition to the infield.

George Harper, thought to be on the decline at Cincinnati, has blossomed out into a brilliant fielder and hitter with the Quaker nine and has rounded out the outfield of the Fletcher coached team.

Harper was always valuable as a utility outfielder and was one of the league's best fielders.

Walter Kimmick has been standing opposing batters on their heads with the ash whenever he plays and the Philadelphia team today stands out as a classy outfit, one that may beat the Reds out in the long major league grind. Kimmick, it will be remembered, is another former Red as is Jimmy Ring, star Phillie pitcher and John Couch, reserve pitcher.

MONEY AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments

Many people have asked, "What is the first investment I should make?" What is it then?

To this question there is one sound answer: "A Savings Account." It is true that savings accounts do not pay quite as high a return as good bonds do, but with a savings account the money is always where it can be drawn on instantly in case of emergency, 100 cents for every dollar invested.

With a good sized account has been built up by steady, systematic saving it is time enough to look about for stocks and bonds to buy. When you reach this stage, go to an officer of your bank or to a good investment banker and put the facts of your case before him.

Remember, however, that bankers and investment bankers are specialists in money matters and that it is far more likely that you are wrong in opinions as to the worth of any stock or bond than the banker is.

EXHIBIT AT PARIS APPLAUDING WORK OF U. S. ARTISTS

Paris, June 1.—American artists in Paris are now showing the cream of their efforts at the Societe des Artistes Francais, familiarly known as the "Old Salon."

The annual exhibition ranks among the oldest of Paris institutions, like the Academie Francaise or the Sorbonne, for it dates back as far as the year 1773. This Spring exposition is the one hundred and thirty-eighth which has been organized by this great group of artists of all nationalities who are assembled in the French capital. Under the regime which preceded the Third Republic it was not an annual display. Made up first of a very small nucleus of artists, who exhibited in the Louvre, it gradually grew until it assumed proportions to fill the immense Grand Palais. This year it had to take to the temporary barracks in the Tuilleries Gardens, because the Palais is being occupied by a portion of the Exposition des Arts Decoratifs.

The dean of American painters in Paris, F. A. Bridgman, is showing Oriental subjects he knows and does so well. W. J. Reynolds has a charming decorative canvas of the Virgin, showing deep religious sentiment; and George Snowden Hill, of Syracuse, N. Y., is receiving many compliments on "Le Balcon," a very large picture, in real French spirit of two maids in balcony windows.

Manchester, June 1.—Society women throughout Britain are up in arms against a scathing speech delivered by Bishop Welldon, of Durham.

The Bishop pilloried modern society and society women in no uncertain terms.

"The revelation which has been most distressing and most appalling is that English women—educated women, too—have in open court not only confessed their immorality, but confessed it with an utter shamelessness, as though it were an axiom of their degraded nature that a life of sinful luxury, even though it be in alliance with a man of alien race and alien color, might be regarded as a glorious career!"

NARROW VIEW

Lady Muir Mackenzie, wife of a celebrated judge, is one of those who condemn the words of the Bishop.

"One never hears," she says, "of the millions of people who live ordinary, normal, moral lives, but only of that very small percentage who go off the rails." They are so few really that it is obviously unfair to take their mode of living as a standard by which to judge modern society.

"Why should so many clergymen take such narrow and bigoted views? For my part, I would pay little heed to what the average Church dignitary says about society. I prefer to abide by what our judges say. They are much more fair."

Miss St. John Montague, well-known society woman and authoress, strongly resents the Bishop's statement.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 1.—Predictions were made freely today that the annual convention of the National Education Association to be held in this city for an entire week, starting June 28, will attract a record-breaking attendance from all over the country.

The tentative program outlined by J. E. Morgan, editor of the Journal of the National Education Association, while on a visit here recently from Washington in connection with the convention, is unusually attractive and calls for the appearance of nationally known educators.

Unless preliminary plans are changed, the convention will be opened formally with a vesper service on the north steps of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument on the afternoon of Sunday, June 28, with Robert J. Aley, president of Butler College and an ex-president of the National Education Association, presiding.

The first general gathering of the association will be held on the evening of the opening day, when James J. Tigert, United States Commissioner of Education, is slated to deliver an address on "The Faith of the American People in Public Education." Then will come more talks by leaders in the educational field of the United States on "New World Movement in Education."

Meetings of the four departments of the association and their allied groups will be held each afternoon, at which questions pertaining to their own work will be discussed.

National figures in the educational world who will address the convention during the week include Jesse H. Newlon, Superintendent of the Public Schools at Denver, Col.; James A. Drinn, national commander of the American Legion; Glen Frank, editor of the Century Magazine; and W. P. Deering, president of Oakland City College and also president of the Indiana State Teachers' Association. Advance reservations for hotel accommodations during the convention already have started coming in.

By MICHAEL

CHAPTER LVII

It was all over. They were married.

From the balcony Michael and Lilah looked down on the throng of dancers. They felt a proprietary interest in the crowd, for each one of those persons had just witnessed the most wonderful event in the world—their wedding. They smiled happily at each other. Lilah crept a little closer to him, and placed her hand in his.

He was not stirred, but he squeezed her hand appreciatively. His nerves were jangling. He imagined that Lonnie had forgotten them, that their train was already gone. He saw in his mind's eye Lonnie lying drunk in the card-room; perhaps, even, Lonnie was splashing around in the swimming-pool in his dress clothes, hilariously celebrating. But even as he worried thusly, he caught Lonnie's eye. He took Lilah's arm.

"Come, pet; it's time for us to go."

"Very well. Find Katherine Capper and tell her I'm ready to change. She had my dress and my traveling bag."

"No, come on. You're not going to change."

She held back. "Why—"

"But—"

"We're going to fool them all," he began when they were outside with Lonnie. "We're going to drive to Winchester and get the train there. Lonnie has it arranged. We'll be on the train, laughing at them when the train gets into town. They were going to try some funny stuff."

"But I can't get on the train this way. And I haven't seen mother to tell her goodbye."

He helped her into the waiting car, and Lonnie leaped into the driver's seat. In a second they were in motion.

"I should think you would have told me about this." She was putting.

"Why, Lilah! I—"

She looked.

FACTORY GIRL ONE OF THE 98

Will Answer Letters from Women Asking About Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lititz, Pa.—"I was very nervous and suffered for a long time with pains in my back and side. I was employed in a factory and for about three months I did no work at all. There were two women who told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I didn't believe what they told me at first, but at last I tried it. It has taken my pains away and my nervousness. I am glad to say that I am one of the 98 out of 100 that it has helped. I recommend it when I can, as I know it is good for women's troubles. I will answer any letter that any woman writes to me. I know the Vegetable Compound has helped me and hope it will help others."—Mrs. CHARLES R. SHUE, R. F. D. 2, Lititz, Pa.

as if she were going to burst into tears, and he was in a panic.

"Lonnie turned and grinned.

"This is the way to fool them."

She turned her face towards the darkness, indignant. Lonnie's eyes met Michael's athen gaze. Thereafter he kept them on the road before him.

"Dearest, I didn't think you would mind. It's a good joke on them. They were going to rag us. Perhaps they would have made us miss the train." He spoke in a pleading tone. His hand sought hers. With lips compressed, she still looked into the darkness. But in a moment she turned her face toward him and allowed herself to be kissed.

When she spoke it was as if she had just won a battle with herself. "Oh, it's all right. Only some of the people may be offended."

There was no miscarriage in Lonnie's plans. They were aboard the train when it left Winchester. There was a catch in Michael's throat as he waved Lonnie—good old Lonnie!—goodbye.

They turned out the lights in the compartment, and waited excitedly at the window for the train to reach the union station.

Michael was reminded to tell Lilah: "Sally promised me today she would stay." In the city, when they saw Katherine and an accompanying crowd on the station platform, they ran to the vestibule of their car and called shrilly.

With a cry the pack was upon them, and rice snowed down and filled the air. Mother Pharley fought her way to the edge of the vestibule.

"Daughter, I was so worried!" They embraced. "Do take good care of her, Michael."

Mrs. Pharley cried, her eyes wet.

"I will." His words floated out upon the air, strangely audible, as the train pulled out. The pack laughed.

Not until the last light of the city was behind them did they go slowly back to the compartment.

Thought his case was hopeless Resinol cleared away pimples in a week

Lexington, Mass., March 5:—"I had been suffering from shaving pimples on my neck for years and, I believe, had tried everything under the sun for them without avail. One day on a friend's advice, I purchased some of your Resinol Ointment and was astonished at the quick results. After a week's constant use, the pimples disappeared completely, leaving the skin clear and fresh. I had thought my case was hopeless, so you can readily see why I was overjoyed at this cure! You can be sure that henceforth you have one more loyal booster for your product." (Signed) Fred J. Fox, 8 Bloomfield St.

Rheumatism

"Yes! it's all gone."

DO NOT close your eyes and think that health, free motion and strength are gone from you forever! It is not so. You can get rid of your rheumatism by building up your blood power. It is a fact that rheumatism means "blood poverty." It is a fact with the increase of red cells in your blood, impurities are destroyed. It is a fact that S.S.S. will help Nature build these red-blood-cells! S.S.S. is one of the most powerful blood cleansers in existence. Its results in thousands of rheumatic cases have been nothing short of amazing! The medicinal ingredients of S.S.S. are purely vegetable. This is very important to remember! What can be more inspiring, more wonderful than to see the shackles of pain released from your struggling body, swellings, lingering pains, stiffness of joints and muscles all disappear; your stomach made strong; your face pink with the old sweetheart glow, your blood enriched and your cheeks more plump as they used to be. You can do it! Take S.S.S., the great destroyer of rheumatic impurities.
